ECONOMY IN FUEL-PETROLEUM AS A PRO-DUCER OF MOTIVE POWER. - An exhibition of a remarkable and important new invention took place in Georgetown, Saturday afternoon, at the foundry of W. A. Duvall & Co., in the presence of several representatives of the press and a number of other gentlemen. The process. which has been in course of quiet development there for the past eight months, consists in converting crude petroleum to the uses of motive power by the application of steam. For several years a couple of gentlemen who were largely interested in the oil regions have made the uses of petrolum a study, and sought perseveringly to adapt to practical ends the vapors and gases which issued from its wells, ti-sures and every opening in the ground, which were simply the result of the evaporation of the petroleum in the earth. Many methods were applied, but chemical difficulties or practical obstacles delayed final success. At length it became apparent that the great secret to be discovered was the application of heat, in such manner as to evaporate the petroleum without carbonization. The various methods were first fully investigated. Furnace heat, no matter how applied, had failed under Government exhow applied, had failed under Government experiments. Heat produced by ejections into the fire of petroleum and steam combined, proved spasmodic, irregular, and dangerous, but it was certain that the vapor of petroleum would not only burn, but would produce the intensest heat of any known agency. Finally, after much study, the inventors and conductors of the present experiments, Mr. R. M. Whipple and Mr. T. S. Dickerson, invented an apparatus, whereby they sought the evaporation of the petroleum through the application of super heated steam, it being evident to them that the great essential hitherto lacking in the process was a sufficient quantity of hydrogen to prevent the earbon from depositing in a solid

For over four months these experiments have been going on, and are at last producing such results as to leave scarcely any doubt of their complete success.

For the past two months the daily duty of the apparatus has been to drive a thirty-horse power engine, with a common thirty five-foot cylindrical boiler. Relative tests with Cumberland coal show that the average pressure of steam with coal fuel under the same boiler is thirty five pounds; the coal fires being raked out and the pumps started, the pressure becomes reduced to twenty five pounds. The gas fires then being started the pressure is increased to seventy pounds in twenty minutes. This service is performed at an expense of one gallon of erude petroleum per hour-cost, seventeen ets. The capacity of the present apparatus is estimated at twenty thousand cubic feet of gas per hour, equally adapted for fuel or for illuminating purposes. From the fire thus produced, when combustion is regulated, there is neither smoke, dust, nor ashes. As a matter of comparative economy the results thus far seem to be of great promise.

MARRIED HIS OWN SISTER. The Dedham Patriot says that a marriage once took place at Canton, Massachusetts, under the following circumstances: The bridegroom, when quite a small boy, ran away from his parents, who lived in Lower Canada. In process of time the father died, the mother married again, and the truits of this union were several daughters. The daughters grew up, and the parents not having the means to support them, they went to work in factories. One strayed to Canton factory, where by a fortuitous circumstance, the runaway happened to be at work. He soon became acquainted with this girl, and be fore a full history of each other's origin was developed married her. In a few days it was ascortained that they both had one mother. This, of course, greatly confused and astonished both parties, from which arose strong conscientious scruples as to the propriety of ! rother and sister living together in a state of matrimony, and, upon mature consideration, they resolved mutually to dissolve their connection as man and wife. "ANTI ROBBER STICK."-A New York editor has been shown a wonderful invention, termed an "anti robber stick," in the handle of which is located a small galvanic battery. -A slight pressure causes the instant throwing out of a strong steel needle at the other end, and penetrating the highwayman who comes in contact with it. The galvanism of the machine at once paralyzes him, and it becomes an easy matter to capture or get away from him. The editor aforesaid saw the inventor experiment on a dog. He touched the animal with the needle, and instantly the dog became as stiff and still as a poker, being unable to wag even his tail. The only objection to this invention seems to be that the robber could use it with just the same effect as the honest man. Its utility, therefore, is questionable.

Chun -There are instances of saltwater fish living and thriving in fresh water. We can instance the chub, which is now found in nearly all our freshwater ponds and creeks. It is said that they were originally brought from Albemarle Sound in North Carolina, while it was yet filled with salt water, and that they were transported thence about a hundred years ago by a gentleman of Williamsburg, who had a large box of small chubs emptied into the college millpond near the old city. From these have sprung all the chubs that now swarm in sale by the fresh waters of Eastern Virginia.
